If the laboring men would march the polls this fall and vote a majority of the Republicans out of power in Congress, it would be a severe blow to the trusts and monopolies. The strike that could be organized would be their ballots. As far as placed they could deal with that would know all of the false pretenses, duplicity and insinuations into smothering men.

According to the May enrollment there are 347,100 legal voters in the city of Philadelphia, but the Democrats fully assert that there are 100,000 fraudulent names on the list. It is charged that the names of dead or voters who have been dead for years remain on the lists and repeat the vote on these names in the direction of the Republican machine at every election. The Democratic organization are hard at work on a plan to prune the lists of illegal voters. This is the first step toward securing an honest election in Philadelphia.

The Longsworth bonding act and the governor's code, while they have restrictions, take from the people and vest in a few municipal officers the whole power of launching large enterprises, bonding the property of tax payers in municipalities in enormous sums, spending the money derived therefrom and carrying the enterprises forward, without consent, or approval, or advice, of the people, taxpayers, or electors, at any stage of the enterprises. While the people are, as Judge McIlvane said in the Frame case, "the source of the political power and in fact constitute the state," these Longsworth ideas of home rule leave them the blessed privileges of sucking their thumbs and paying the debts, the hawks and bones of home rule, the dead, not the living, thing, the shadow, no, not even the shadow, in lieu of the substance — Columbus Dispatch.

It is rather a surprise that the bicycle business is reviving, if not in this country, in foreign lands. We have the advantage in an increasing demand for American wheels. During the twelve months ending June, 1900, the value of cycles and parts of cycles exported was $3,554,000. During the corresponding period ending June, 1901, this figure fell to $2,515,000. During the year just past it rose to $2,827,000. The wide distribution of the exports is noteworthy. Europe, Asia, Africa, South America, and all the islands, isles and islets of the sea favor us with their orders. Central America, San Domingo, China, Japan and Africa are particularly satisfactory. They are importing ever more heavily now than they did two years ago. Africa is taking almost twice as much, while China is an expanding market. In 1900 its American cycles and parts of cycles were valued at $20,000. This year the figure is $60,000.

How to Conduct Election in American Style.

San Juan Puerto Rico Aug. 27.—Three persons were killed and several seriously injured during an election at La Placita on the eastern coast of the island yesterday afternoon. A number of shots were fired. Trouble was to all appearances pre-arranged. Rioters about 9 o'clock in the evening began firing pistols on the corner in the heart of the town and the disorder quickly became general.

And Make No Explanation as to Why They Did Not.

Scranton Pa. Aug. 27.—President Anthony of the North American Coal Co. who sent a letter to miners pressuring Mitchell stating that work at the National Washery could open today and asking Mitchell to keep the strikers away did not open up the mine. A large crowd had assembled to see the work begin. The mine operators made no explanation as to why they did not begin operations.

ROOSEVELT IN MAINE | SURGICAL OPERATIONS

Greetings by the People Flattering in the Extreme.

CROWDS TURN OUT AT EACH POINT.

The President the Recipient of Many Floral and Other Gifts From the Enthusiastic Yankees.—The Itinerary and Interesting Incidents of the Tour of New England.

Augusta, Me., Aug. 27.—A great ovation was tendered to President Roosevelt upon his arrival in this city home of the late James G. Blaine. The President came into Maine after having visited many places in New England states and before his departure tonight he will have visited every congressional district in the state the principal city in each district, and the home city of each of Maine's United States senators. At every stopping place along the line a great crowd had gathered and the president was accorded a genuine down-east welcome. At Old Orchard where the special train made its first stop after crossing the state line, thousands of persons from all parts of York and lower Cumberland counties had gathered. Upon his arrival in this city the president was joined by Senator W. F. Gannett, who had just returned from a trip to Europe. A great crowd in Railway square was gathered for a drive about the city.

While en route, way through the streets of Portland his carriage was stopped and he was presented with an album containing views of the city. He stood up in his carriage and truly thanked "the men of the Adirondack," Charles F. Dam. He has been the recipient of many floral and other gifts and where the admirers were unable to get near enough personally to hand them to him they threw them over the heads of the crowd into his carriage.

At Augusta the president said: "It would be difficult for any man speaking to this audience and for any one in front of the house in which Blaine once lived to fail to feel whatever Americanism there was in him stirred to the depths. For my good fortune, I know Mr. Blaine quite well when he was secretary of state, and I have thought again and again during the past few years how pleased he would have been to see so many of those principles for which he stood approach fruition. One secret, perhaps I may say the chief secret, of Mr. Blaine's extraordinary hold upon the affections of his countrymen, was his entirely genuine and unaffected Americanism. And Mr. Blaine possessed to an eminent degree the confident hope in the nation's future which made him feel that she must ever strive to fit herself for a great destiny. He felt that no republic must in every way take the lead in the western hemisphere. He felt that the republic must take a great part among the great nations of the earth. The last four years have shown how true that feeling of his was. He had always hoped that he would have a particularly intimate relation with the countries south of us. He could hardly have anticipated, no one could have, the Spanish war and its effects. In consequence of that war America's interest in the tropic islands to our south and the seas and coasts surrounding those islands is far greater than ever before. Our interest in the Monroe doctrine is more concrete than ever before. The Monroe doctrine is simply a statement of our very firm belief that on this continent the nations now existing here must be left to work out their own destinies among themselves, and that the continent is no longer to be regarded as colonizing ground for any European power."

General Miles' Application.

Washington, Aug. 27.—It has developed that General Miles' application to go to the Philippines was of comparatively recent date, and was in no way connected with his application of several months ago. When the first application was made it was coupled with certain suggestions as to terminating the war, and Secretary Root's refusal to grant the first request was based largely upon these phases of the application. In view of this it is understood that General Miles restricted his second application so as to make the trip one for purely military purposes.

Rush For Homesteads.

El Reno, Okla., Aug. 27.—The decision of the supreme court attaching a strip of land four miles wide to Oklahoma in the Chickasaw nation has brought thousands of people here to file at the land office, and more than 400 claims were registered. Special trains are bringing in additional crowds, and the rush for these lands promises to be almost as great as the opening last fall. There are about 1,500 farms in the strip.

One Resisted.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 27.—Three brothers named Sweet from White Earth, Minn., who were camping near here, were held up by three masked men. The oldest brother resisted and was shot and is in a critical condition. His assailant John Rooney was captured. The younger brothers were robbed of gold watches and some money.

Internal Revenue.

Washington, Aug. 27.—The monthly statement of the collections of internal revenue shows that for the month of July, 1902, the total collections were $29,236,358, a decrease as compared with July, 1901, of $1,161,481.

NEW COLONY OF AZTECS

Remnants of Powerful Race Found Living in Mexico.

DISCOVERY OF NOTED SCIENTIST.

Dr. Ales Hrdlicka of the American Museum of Natural History in New York Says the Traditions and Customs of Another Age Are Preserved in the Present Tribe.

That the ancient race of the Aztecs exists today in the state of Morelos, Mexico, their race lines and physical characteristics unchanged, although the arts and civilization of four centuries ago are lost, has been established by Dr. Ales Hrdlicka of the American Museum of Natural History of New York. The discovery is one of the results of his fourth expedition to that region, from which he has just returned.

Scientists knew that a remnant of the nation lived in Mexico, but Dr. Hrdlicka is the first to reach an absolute conclusion by means of measurements and like physiological observations. That they are of the original Aztec nation is indicated by historical records which show that a body of them migrated to the country they now inhabit near Cuernavaca, fifty miles south of the city of Mexico. Their language is that of the Aztec, two villages speaking nothing else, while a few speak Spanish as well.

The arts of civilization, sculpture, painting, and stone building, which formerly distinguished them, have disappeared, but the reed and wooden houses they now occupy are identical with those of the earlier period. The race type of 2,000 years ago remains intact.

The Aztec of today is the Aztec of ancient times as far as purity of type goes. He is far more of an Aztec than the present day Egyptian is an Egyptian," said Dr. Hrdlicka to a reporter of the New York Herald. "In population they number several thousand. Like the Indians of North America, they assimilated to a degree the customs of the civilization about them. At present the Aztec is in danger of extermination from drinking. They took readily to the national beverages of Mexico and have steadily degenerated. The few arts, such as beadmaking and weaving, they possessed thirty years ago have slipped from them. They are inferior to the Yaquis, further north, and are absolutely dominated by the Mexicans about them.

"Superstition and legend alone remain of their worship of the sun, the earth and the fire god. They have embraced Christianity. The churches are located in the middle of their villages, and the services are held in Spanish. This seems to have no destroying effect, however, on the integrity of their language. The ancient hieroglyphics, which have never been deciphered and which archaeologists believe to hold the secrets of a great civilization, the present Aztec is unable to translate. The art of writing his tongue has gone with the other attributes of former times.

While a few can read and write Spanish, the majority are ignorant." Dr. Hrdlicka was loath to speak of this subject.

"It is not in my province to talk about that, for scientists are jealous of each other's prerogatives. I can only say that the old monuments mean nothing more to the Aztec than objects of superstition are awe. There is no key to the unanswerable problem of the old Aztec nation and its origin to be obtained from the modern tribe.

Measurements of the skulls of the present race when compared with those found in the graves of the old Aztecs show that the two are identical in this respect. The comparison of the features of the living Aztec with those found on the monuments and in wall paintings prove unsatisfactory on account of differences in dress.

"The Aztec does not confine himself to the Morelos region," Dr. Hrdlicka continued. "I have seen a full-blooded Aztec in the city of Mexico, and it is not an uncommon thing to find them in smaller towns. Once away from their villages, however, their individuality is lost, and they become like any citizen of Mexico. In dress and language they are alike, and one may distinguish the Aztec only by his physical characteristics. They are a branch of the Nahua race, to which the Toltecs, who preceded them and reached a higher degree of civilization, possibly belonged."

Dr. Hrdlicka brought with him many examples of Aztec handicraft, both ancient and modern, which will be added to the collection of the American Museum of Natural History. His additions to the museum from this expedition will make that collection the most complete of its kind in the world. He procured a number of Aztec skulls and parts of skeletons. They will prove invaluable in providing anthropological measurements. One of the rarest acquisitions is a Toltec skull in fine preservation. It belongs to an age antedating any present history of America.

In addition to the Morelos region Dr. Hrdlicka visited southern Utah, Arizona, New Mexico and a great part of Mexico. His researches in the Yucatan country will reveal what had hitherto been unknown about that section. That warlike people are a mystery to civilization, and little is known of the long warfare they have waged against the Mexicans. One of Dr. Hrdlicka's specimens from that country is a bullet they manufacture for rifles, for which they make the powder and cast the lead, using old shells. The examples of their work in weaving will add to the museum a department owned by no other institution in the world.

ON THE WANE

In the Golden Star of the Klondike.

Alleged Discoveries.

Washington, Aug. 27.—The golden star of the Klondike is on the wane according to the official report of George H. Hess, who recently was sent to Dawson by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association to make a thorough examination into the business prospects of the Yukon territory. Mr. Hess points to the fact that the total yield of the Klondike last year was $24,000,000, and that the production of the coming year will not, according to government estimates, exceed $14,000,000, a falling off of nearly one-half. Moreover, no new discoveries have been made for over a year, although since 1897 thousands of prospectors have been exploring every creek and mountain in the country. At Dawson Mr. Hess reports 10 applicants for every job yet boatload after boatload of men continues to arrive.

Great Discoveries in Alaska.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 27.—The first message to the outside world by wire from Valdez was received here, the telegraph line just having been completed. The dispatch reports that Robert Blei, the expert sent into the "Nazinc silver district" by Captain Delamar, has just reached Valdez and reports that the Nazinc district has the greatest mines in Alaska. The richness of the country, Mr. Blei says insures the building of a railroad at the earliest possible season. Mountains of tin have been found near Mount Wrangell, 150 miles distant. This is the greatest season of discoveries Alaska has ever known.

At Strike Headquarters.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 27.—President Mitchell and the United Mine Workers' executive boards of the three anthracite districts were in session at strike headquarters. After the conference President Mitchell said that only routine business had been transacted. It is understood that reports were received from each of the three districts bearing upon the amount of relief received, how it is distributed and how many if any of the strikers have returned to work. It is said all the reports were of a favorable character.

The number of employees who returned to work is very small. Active operations are going on in several of the mines in the Wyoming region looking to an early resumption of mining.

Despite denials from strike headquarters, it is learned that there are a number of experienced miners at work in the Avondale mine of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western company, and several miners were engaged to go to work in the Dorrance mine. A PHYSICIAN HEALED.

Dr. Geo. Ewing, a practicing physician of Meadville, Pa., for over thirty years, writes his personal experience with Toley's Remedy: "For years I had been greatly troubled with kidney and bladder trouble, and enlarged prostate gland. I used to check up the books. Of what transpired there I am not in a position to speak at this time, but may have a statement later. You may say that I found the books balanced and the money of the organization in proper

Not Over-Wise.

There is an old allegorical picture of a girl scared at a grasshopper, but in the act of heedlessly treading on a snake. This is paralleled by the man who spends a large sum of money building a cyclone cellar, but neglects to provide his family with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as a safeguard against bowel complaints, whose victims outnumber those of the cyclone a hundred to one. This remedy is everywhere recognized as the most prompt and reliable medicine in use for these diseases. For sale by W. M. Melville, old post office corner.

Dysentery Cured Without the Aid of a Doctor.

"I am just up from a hard spell of the flux" (dysentery) says Mr. T. A. Pinney, a well known merchant of Drummond, Tenn. "I used one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and was cured without having a doctor. I consider it the best cholera medicine in the world." There is no need of employing a doctor when this remedy is used, for no doctor can prescribe a better medicine for bowel complaint in any form either for children or adults. It never fails and is pleasant to take. For sale by W. M. Melville, old post office corner.

ANECDOTES OF MORGAN

Side Lights on the World's Financial Colossus.

HOW HE IS TRUSTED BY RICH MEN

Walter Wellman Tells of the Blind Confidence Moneyed Men Have in the Banker's Wonderful Ability. Amusing Experience With the Bank of England—How He Was Worked by a Messenger Boy—Recent Treatment of a Photographer.

Apropos of the fact that J Pierpont Morgan is the man of the hour, the following anecdotes depicting the characteristics of the financial colossus of the age are of timely interest:

Just before he landed in New York the other day J Pierpont Morgan was asked by a photographer if he would pose for his picture. Mr. Morgan replied: "No, I would not pose for you for $5,000,000." An attempt upon the part of a photographer to take a snapshot aroused the indignation of Mr. Morgan, and for a time he stood with his cane firmly gripped in his hand looking at the camera. When told that no picture had been taken as the New York Herald had turned and walked down the creek.

Walter Wellman according to a San Francisco exchange, tells this story, illustrative of the blind confidence moneyed men place in J Pierpont Morgan. It is no uncommon thing for Mr. Morgan to take hold of a project requiring $10,000,000, $20,000,000 or $40,000,000. Without consulting any one he decides what he is going to do. In a few hours his messengers are on the way to the offices of his clientele, all big firms or capitalists. They carry and deliver notes which read something like this:

"Dear Sir—There is an operation which requires about $10,000,000 and six months time. Your share is $6,000,000." I.P.M.

"Within a couple of hours Mr. Morgan has in his hands $10,000,000 or whatever the sum is that he wants. Not one of the subscribers knows what he is up to and the only part of it is that not one of them dares ask him a single question. For six months the banker carries in his hands a plan in which every little atom is fixed and at the expiration of that period they get their checks back with a smile. I believe if Mr. Morgan were pushed to the wall he would have millions of dollars in forty-eight hours."

J Pierpont Morgan is always a bit cautious but he knows how to invest his money more profitably than most. Just last year Mr. Morgan tried the world famous bath at Aix les Bains in Savoy for rheumatic trouble, says the Milwaukee Wisconsin. Whenever he has a place he always does good care of the servants. The following incident is related of how the great banker was persuaded by a messenger boy to give him $100 when $100 would have been a liberal compensation.

Pierre, said Mr. Morgan on the day of his departure from the watering place, Pierre here is $100 for your honesty and promptness. (The boy had been the steel trust magnate's messenger for two weeks.)

A thousand thanks, monsieur," replied Pierre, tumbling the money undeducted "but monsieur!"

"But what?" cried Mr. Morgan, "did you expect me to give you a million?"

"No monsieur you gave me more than I deserve but I would like your permission to tell the hotel servants that you gave me $100."

"Why, you young rascal?"

In monsieur's own interest, to be sure, I like to make people believe that you made money at the house instead of losing some during the recent crisis of which the newspapers talk."

"You are a clever fellow," laughed Mr. Morgan, "but I don't want you to tell lies on my account. Here is $400."

While in London a short time ago J Pierpont Morgan visited the Bank of England with a large currency note, for which he wished to obtain gold, says the New York Times. The teller examined the note and handed it back.

"You have not indorsed it," he said, glad of an opportunity to occupy an attitude.

"Is this not payable on demand?" asked Mr. Morgan, simulating surprise. "Yes, if indorsed," haughtily.

The magnate frowned. "I am very careful whose notes I indorse," he said with mock severity.

"Do you challenge the Bank of England?" quipped the clerk, gazing at the visitor as upon a blasphemer.

"If you are solvent, why do you want my name on your paper?"

The glare of suspicion which accompanied the words was too much for the clerk, he stared speechlessly.

"Very well," continued the magnate with vigor, "we will let it go to protest."

The petrified clerk looked alarmed about it, but could offer nothing in reply except a numbled and ridiculous assurance that the bank was not in distress. Then Mr. Morgan smiled and indorsed the note.

An insurance officer, who claims to be the only man in his line who ever talked business to J. Pierpont Morgan, remarked the other day, according to the San Francisco Argonaut: "I could more easily see the hundred hardest men in San Francisco than do it again. Never mind how I did it. I walked in on Morgan at the office one day and stated my business. How did you get in here?" said he. "I walked in," said I. "Well, walk out," said he. "I did."

An amusing story is related of J. Pierpont Morgan in connection with one of his visits to Dinan, in France, says the Pittsburgh Dispatch. He employed a local photographer to develop a number of views that he had been taking with his camera, but the photographer did not know the timer and hesitated whether he should complete the work or not before having some assurance that he was going to be paid for it.

So he went down to the local bank and asked the manager if he happened to know anything about a gentleman named Morgan.

"At America," asked the manager, "Yes," replied the photographer. "Mr.—what is it?—oh, Pierpont Morgan."

"Precisely," replied the manager. "Well, we know till we want to know about him."

"Oh, now, sir, will it be safe to trust him for 400 francs?"

"Trust him," cried the banker, "trust him for anything, for everything he takes it into his head to dream of."

A leading jeweler of Paris tells the following story about J. Pierpont Morgan, says the New York World.

Mr. Morgan had seen two magnificent diamonds in the jeweler's shop and wanted to present them to the New York Museum of Natural History for its collection of precious stones, but he thought the price $8,000, extorting it. A few days later however, being then in London, Mr. Morgan wrote to the jeweler to send the diamonds to him for a second examination which was done. Within a week the jeweler received another letter from Mr. Morgan, accompanying a small box heavily sealed. The letter said:

The stones are really perfect. I would like to buy them but think your price abnormal. That's why I send them back. If you can let me have them for $6,000, telegraph at the same time returning duly remunerated, without troubling about breaking the seals, in order to save time.

The jeweler did not to reduce the price and opened the box. The diamonds were not there but just as he found Mr. Morgan's check for $8,000 with this brief note: "I'll take them anyhow. Send receipt."

Here is a little story about Ohio's governor from the New York Press. It's not the custom to refer to J. Pierpont Morgan as the good Samaritan, but he in his time acted the part. Governor Porte of Ohio was a very ill man in the election of Grant's to fight the battle for the late General Grant.

He was sick in his bed and could not leave it. He sent for Dr. Wilkins, a local physician, and Dr. Wilkins came to the bed side and said: "I'll cure you."

"I'll pay you $100," said the governor.

"I'll take $100," said Dr. Wilkins.

ROOSEVELT IN MAINE

SURGICAL OPERATIONS

Greetings by the People Flattering in the Extreme.

CROWDS TURN OUT AT EACH POINT.

The President the Recipient of Many Floral and Other Gifts From the Enthusiastic Yankees—The Itinerary and Interesting Incidents of the Tour of New England.

Augusta, Me., Aug. 27.—A great ovation was tendered to President Roosevelt upon his arrival in this city home of the late James G. Blaine. The President came into Maine after having visited many places in New England and before his departure tonight he will have visited every congressional district in the state, the principal city in each district, and the home city of each of Maine's United States senators. At every stopping place along the line a great crowd had gathered, and the president was accorded a genuine down-east welcome. At Old Orchard, where the special train made its first stop after crossing the state line, thousands of persons from all parts of York and lower Cumberland counties had gathered. Upon his arrival in this city the president was joined by Senator W. F. Frye and after speaking briefly to a great crowd in Railway Square was taken for a drive about the city.

While en route, way through the streets of Portland his carriage was stopped and he was presented with an album containing views of the city. He stood in his carriage and briefly reviewed the tour in the Charles F. Dam. He has been the recipient of many floral and other gifts, and where the admirers were unable to get near enough personally to hand them to him they threw them over the heads of the crowd into his carriage.

At Augusta the president said: "It would be difficult for any man speaking to this audience and for any one in front of the house in which Blaine once lived to fail to feel whatever Americanism there was in him stirred to the depths. For my good fortune, I know Mr. Blaine quite well when he was secretary of state, and I have thought again and again during the past few years how pleased he would have been to see so many of those principles for which he stood approach fruition. One secret, perhaps, I may say the chief secret, of Mr. Blaine's extraordinary hold upon the affections of his countrymen was his entirely genuine and unaffected Americanism. And Mr. Blaine possessed to an eminent degree the confident hope in the nation's future which made him feel that she must ever strive to fit herself for a great destiny. He felt that the republic must in every way take the lead in the western hemisphere. He felt that this republic must take a great part among the great nations of the earth."

The fullest counsel on this subject can be secured without cost by writing to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be entirely confidential.

PEOPLE WE KNOW.

They are Lima People, and What They Say is of Local Interest.

When an incident like the following occurs right here at home, it is bound to carry weight with our readers. So many strange occurrences go the rounds of the press; are published as facts, people become skeptical. On one subject skepticism is rapidly disappearing. This is due to the actual experience of our citizens, and their public utterances regarding them. The doctor must count no more in the face of such evidence as this. The public statement of a reputable citizen living right here at home, one whom you can see every day, leaves no ground for the skeptic to stand on.

Mr. R. Evans, of 724 south Elizabeth street, says: "I had extreme lameness and soreness through the joints and kidneys, the kidney secretions were frequent and unnatural, causing me to rise often during the night. I could not rest comfortably in bed and in the mornings arose tired and all run down. I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at W. M. Melville's drug store and commenced their treatment. They helped me at once. From the great benefit I received I had no hesitation in recommending this valuable remedy to others."

FINE

Program Rendered
Last Night

At the Benefit

That Was Given For Lima College.

Rendition Was Enjoyed by a Large Audience of Music Lovers.

Participants Were All Former and Present Students at the Institution—The Program as Rendered.

The concert given at the Congregational church last evening as a Lima College benefit, as one of the finer of the year, a fine audience of music loving people were present, and were in high praise of the program and its rendition. Every number was well given and deserves special note. Lima can well be proud of the talent possessed by her own young people, and still more of the fact that these same young people are diligently cultivating this talent. The manner in which the music was rendered would do credit to many a larger city, or more pretentious school than Lima College whose pupils all the participants are or have been. Four pianos and several are supplementing their home study by further study under eminent teachers elsewhere. Lima's good wishes go with them again to their study this year, and will visit their return home with delight. Especial mention ought to be made of the string quartette. There is no combination of musical instruments which is capable of giving more thoroughly refined and enjoyable music than this, and the fine performance last night, gives promise of many enjoyable evenings in the future. Following is the program:

Piano Duet—Rhapsodie Hongroise No. 2 Lasz Rhea and Earl Watson. Reading—The Spanish Student Longfellow. Violin—Vinson. Piano—Concerto Op. 15. Beethoven. Ruth Wheeler. Orchestral parts played on second piano by Mr. Adams. Solo—O Mia Fernando.... Donizetti. Leah Arthur. String Quartette—Sounds from Home Elsengruber. Vera Watson, first violin; Gale Watson, second violin; Rhea Watson, viola; Earl Watson, cello. Violin—Hungarian Rhapsode Hauser. Vera Watson. Solo—Who'll Buy My Lavender German. Edna Burton. Piano—Wedding March and Play of the Elves Mendelssohn-Laszt. Ethel Bogg. Mavis Peat, Accompanist.

WELL PLEASED

With Care He Received at the City Hospital.

J. N. Robertson, a well known Buckeye Pipe Line Co. employee, has just left the city hospital after having been a patient there for about two weeks during which he underwent a surgical operation. He is again enjoying good health and a rapid return of strength, and says he is unable to express in words his appreciation of the excellent care and splendid treatment he received at the hospital. The nurses and everyone connected with the institution, he says, could have done nothing more than they did, cheerfully and carefully, for his comfort and rapid recovery.

TWO

Matters of Public Interest

Are Uppermost

In the Minds of Board of Trade Members

And Both Will be Discussed at Meeting to be Held Friday Night.

The Coming of the Dunkards and the Increase in Fire Insurance Both Demand Immediate Attention.

Lima has until September 5th, to frame a proposition in writing to the Dunkard committee, and upon that proposition everything depends as to whether the big convention will be held at the fair grounds next May.

Accordingly it has been decided to hold a meeting of the board of trade, and the following notice has been issued:

There will be an important meeting of the Lima Board of Trade at the assembly room, Court House, Friday evening, August 29th. Two very important matters will be taken up.

One of them will be in reference to securing the Dunkard meeting to be held here in May, 1903, and their committee must have our report by Sept. 5th, 1902; the other matter will be in reference to the increase of fire insurance in our city. Every citizen in town that carries fire insurance should be present at this meeting.

Those who attend this meeting who are not members of the Board of Trade, will please accompany themselves with the necessary $2.00, as it is impossible for the Lima Board of Trade to exist without a little cash.

WILLIAMS

The Alleged Horse Thief, Taken to Kalamazoo.

Was Unlawfully Taken Out of the State of Ohio and Michigan Authorities Claimed Him.

Attended the Fair at Celina and Failed to Return to Her Home.

Went to Greenville With a Crippled Lemonade Vendor and Both Were Arrested by Officers of That City.

The sensational arrests made night before last when Ed. Pearl, a C. I. & D. switchman, and L. A. Rollins were taken into custody on charge of criminal assault, it being alleged that they had led 15 year-old Effie Burden, of Tippakoneta astray, was followed quickly by another and similar case in which a young Lima girl was enticed from her home and friends by a stranger. The girl is Effie, the 15 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Mowery, of Melcheron avenue. She left home last week and went to Celina with party of friends to attend the Mercer county fair, but did not return with her friends.

Police Were Notified.

Mr. Mowery reported the disappearance of his daughter to the police and information was received from Celina stating that she had fallen into company with a one-legged lemonade peddler at the fair grounds, and had gone with him to Greenville. The authorities at Greenville were requested to arrest both man and girl, and late yesterday afternoon, word was received that they had been apprehended and were in jail at Greenville.

Man Was Released.

Mr. Mowery left here for Greenville last evening to take charge of his daughter, and early this morning, the police received a message from the Greenville authorities stating that they would hold the girl until her father arrived and would release the one-legged man who had been arrested with her. It is not known whether or not Mr. Mowery will endeavor to have the man prosecuted.

SOME THINGS

Are Too Good to Keep and This is One of Them.

Ross Cramer, engineer at Banta's candy factory has been keeping a little surprise up his sleeve for several months but he is so long telling it that it is time to deprive him of the pleasure.

It has been known for some time among a few of Mr. Crossley's friends that he joined the ranks of the benedicts, at Adas in the early spring, having been married very quietly to Miss Alma Mitchell. Mrs. Cramer has been visiting in Michigan and it was to arrange for her home coming as his wife that Mr. Cramer made a trip there Sunday.

These who attend this meeting who are not members of the Board of Trade, will please accompany themselves with
